|| Epidemiology || Malaria Kills Nearly Half a Million Children in the African Region Every Year: The World Health Organisation Recommends R21:Matrix-M Vaccine For Malaria Prevention ||

|| Monday: October 02: 2023 || $\acute{\alpha}$. The World Health Organisation:WHO has recommended a new vaccine, R21:Matrix-M, for the prevention of malaria in children. The recommendation follows advice from the WHO: Strategic Advisory Group of Experts on Immunisation:SAGE and the Malaria Policy Advisory Group:MPAG and was endorsed by the WHO Director-General, following its regular bi-annual meeting, held on September 25-29.

The R21 and RTS.S vaccines act against P. falciparum, the deadliest malaria parasite and the most prevalent on the African continent. The updated WHO recommendation for malaria vaccines was informed by the results of the WHO-co-ordinated Malaria Vaccine Implementation Programme, through which nearly two million children in Ghana, Kenya and Malawi have been reached with the RTS.S:AS01 malaria vaccine since 2019.

The pilot introduction of the first malaria vaccine has resulted in a substantial impact in reducing severe malaria illness, hospitalisations and child deaths. The R21 vaccine is the second malaria vaccine, recommended by WHO, following the RTS.S:AS01 vaccine, which received a WHO recommendation in 2021. Both vaccines are shown to be safe and effective in preventing malaria in children and, when implemented broadly, are expected to have high public health impact.

Malaria, a mosquito-borne disease, places a particularly high burden on children in the African Region, where nearly half a million children die from the disease each year. Demand for malaria vaccines is unprecedented; however, available supply of RTS.S is limited. The addition of R21 to the list of WHO-recommended malaria vaccines is expected to result in sufficient vaccine supply to benefit all children living in areas where malaria is a public health risk.

“As a malaria researcher, I used to dream of the day we would have a safe and effective vaccine against malaria. Now we have two.” Said Dr Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus, WHO Director-General. “Demand for the RTS.S vaccine far exceeds supply, so this second vaccine is a vital additional tool to protect more children faster and to bring us closer to our vision of a malaria-free future.”

Dr Matshidiso Moeti, WHO Regional Director for Africa, emphasised the importance of this recommendation for the continent. “This second vaccine holds real potential to close the huge demand-and-supply gap. Delivered to scale and rolled out widely, the two vaccines can help bolster malaria prevention and control efforts and save hundreds of thousands of young lives in Africa from this deadly disease.”

Key features of the R21 malaria vaccine:

The updated WHO malaria vaccine recommendation is informed by evidence from an on-going R21 vaccine clinical trial and other studies, which showed:

::: High efficacy when given just before the high transmission season: In areas with highly seasonal malaria transmission where malaria transmission is largely limited to four or five months per year, the R21 vaccine was shown to reduce symptomatic cases of malaria by 75% during the 12 months, following a 3-dose series. A fourth dose given a year after the third maintained efficacy. This high efficacy is similar to the efficacy demonstrated when RTS.S is given seasonally.

::: Good efficacy when given in an age-based schedule: The vaccine showed good efficacy, 66%, during the 12 months, following the first three doses. A fourth dose a year after the third maintained efficacy.

::: High impact: Mathematical modelling estimates indicate the public health impact of the R21 vaccine is expected to be high in a wide range of malaria transmission settings, including low transmission settings.

::: Cost effectiveness: At prices of $02-$04 per dose, the cost-effectiveness of the R21 vaccine would be comparable with other recommended malaria interventions and other childhood vaccines.

::: Similarity of R21 and RTS.S vaccines: The two WHO-recommended vaccines, R21 and RTS.S, have not been tested in a head-to-head trial. There is no evidence to date, showing one vaccine performs better than the other. The choice of product to be used in a country should be based on programmatic characteristics, vaccine supply and vaccine affordability.

::: Safety: The R21 vaccine was shown to be safe in clinical trials. As with other new vaccines, safety monitoring will continue.

::: Next steps for the second recommended malaria vaccine, R21:Matrix-M, include completing the on-going WHO pre-qualification, which would enable international procurement of the vaccine for broader rollout.

At least, 28 countries in Africa plan to introduce a WHO-recommended malaria vaccine as part of their national immunisation programmes. Gavi, the Vaccine Alliance, has approved providing technical and financial support to roll out malaria vaccines to 18 countries. The RTS.S vaccine will be rolled out in some African countries in early 2024 and the R21 malaria vaccine is expected to become available to countries around middle of 2024. ::::ω::::
